Weekly Bulletin #241

The RULE OF LIFE for the Catholic who would live the fullness of his life is to SEEK CHRIST and to be united to Him, by daily prayer, by daily reading and reflection, by the frequent use of the sacraments, especially of the Blessed Eucharist, and BY DOING THE WILL OF GOD. No higher program is necessary to reach sanctity. Anyone of whom it could be said at the end of his life - - - - "HE DID THE WILL OF GOD" - - such a one is perfect.

But All must be clear about this: there is no other way of being perfect. All the exercises of religion mentioned - - PRAYER, READING, THE SACRAMENTS, DAILY OR FREQUENT COMMUNION, THE MASS - - however holy in themselves, are ONLY MEANS TO AN END. Their use and practice, however frequent and fervent, DO NOT CONSTITUTE HOLINESS. It does seem that in some places today, it is taught that holiness resides in externals!!! IT DOES NOT! Externals are a very great help to holiness, but holiness itself is SOMETHING QUITE DIFFERENT. Holiness is something which affects every moment of our life, something which is rooted in the very depths of our being. It is a permanent union with God, a constant abiding in Christ by lovingly DOING HIS WILL, ALWAYS AND IN ALL THINGS.

This ALONE will make our life fruitful. We see the saints praised for their great works; we are told of their great talents, their organizing ability, their keenness of intellect, their excellence of judgement, their extensive learning. They are famous for their ingenuity, their originality, their initiative, their miracles, their apostolic success, their power over souls. In a word, they are presented to us as great men and women. And we are tempted to think that the possession or the achievement of such greatness, if it is not holiness itself, is at least an essential part of it. THE TRUTH IS QUITE OTHERWISE. In point of fact, while some of the saints had some of these qualities, yet NONE of these qualities is sanctity. For sanctity, as revealed to us by our Lord's teaching and example, is by DOING THE LITTLE EVERY DAY THINGS in union with Him by Faith, by Hope and by Love. By humility, by obedience, and by COMPLETE abandonment to His Will.
